

Strategic Planning

The Young Children's Program is an integral part of the JMU College of Education. It exists because of the opportunities offered for faculty research and high-quality field experiences for students in the Early Childhood Education Program. Because of this relationship, planning for the future of the YCP occurs within the context of planning for the College and the Department of Early, Elementary, and Reading Education.

Program goals and direction are determined through the annual program review, surveys of staff and families, and input from departmental faculty.
