

Who Should Earn an MPA?

The Master of Public Administration degree is the recognized professional degree in public administration.

It enhances the administrative knowledge and skills of those already employed as professionals in government, nonprofit organizations and firms that deal extensively with government.

The JMU MPA Program in Roanoke is delivered entirely at the Roanoke Higher Education Center. Most classes will be taught through video-conferencing, and faculty will make occasional trips to Roanoke to meet with students; other classes will be taught on-site by adjunct faculty.

This cohort-based program is designed to meet the needs of working professionals and takes only 26 months to complete.

MPA Program in Roanoke

The JMU Master of Public Administration degree requires 36 credit-hours of coursework for “in-service” students, those presently employed or recently employed in a substantive position in the public sector. The curriculum enables students to function effectively in the public and nonprofit sectors. Students will learn concepts and skills relevant to public organizations, public management, human resources, policy evaluation, budgeting and administrative law.

The Roanoke Program offers students a concentration in Public and Nonprofit Management. This concentration will provide relevant training for local government and nonprofit employees.

Students who do not have a significant professional work background in a public administration work setting are expected to complete a supervised internship with a public or nonprofit agency, which adds 6 credits to the program.
