This course will propose, consider and analyze the different relationships between communication and food and how these relationships negotiate our identities, cultures and environments. First, we discuss how each of us constitute and communicate our identities through the food we consume and importantly the food we do not consume. Second, we understand how our food choices symbolically create, shape and reflect our cultures. Third, we analyze how corporate, mainstream mass media and governmental institutions discursively frame, influence and shape our food practices. Finally, we examine how our food practices intersect, communicate and impact our relationships to our surrounding environments. This course is offered on a contingency basis. If the minimum enrollment number of 7 is not met, the class will be cancelled.

This class is offered on a contingency basis. If the minimum enrollment of 8 is not met, the class will be cancelled. This class meets online and will NOT require you to be in Harrisonburg or on the JMU campus. Students who register for this online version of GCOM 123 for summer 2011 should understand the following:

- This course REQUIRES students to meet twice a week ONLINE with the other members of the class (synchronously). Synchronous meetings will be held between 11 am and 1 pm on Mondays & Wednesdays June 13 & 15, 20 & 22, 27 & 29, July 6 & one other possible day.
- Synchronous meetings REQUIRE the use of a stable high-speed Internet connection.
- This course REQUIRES each student to use a computer camera and microphone at all synchronous class meetings.
- This course REQUIRES each student to participate in a small group. Small groups are expected to meet online outside of regularly scheduled class meetings to design, develop, and coordinate required group presentations. Group meetings will require additional hours of synchronous computer time each week.
- The textbook for this class is Rothwell's IN THE COMPANY OF OTHERS, 3rd Edition.

TOPIC: Studies in Conspiracy Theories. The course examines the rhetorical construction of conspiracy theories by examining both the argumentative and persuasive techniques employed by their creators and those who respond to them. The course will cover many of the mainstream conspiracy theories, but will also look at new and emerging theories and challenge students to examine the ways that conspiracy theories function as a cultural phenomenon. This course if offered on a contingency basis. If the minimum enrollment number of 8 is not met, the class will be cancelled.

SMAD Application Procedure - To effectively manage enrollment, the School of Media Arts & Design adopted an application process. The deadline for this application process is the last Friday in January each spring. For more information contact the main office. Change of Concentration - Students accepted into the major must pick a concentration and focus area. Students who wish to change concentrations and/or focus areas after being accepted into the major may do so only during the annual application time period. A student will be permitted to change concentrations and/or focus areas with the approval of the admissions committee. Students must complete approval forms and receive approval from the school office prior to registration in SMAD 390 (Directed Project), SMAD 490 (Special Studies) and SMAD 495 (Internship) courses. Students interested in registering for an internship must have a minimum 2.7 GPA overall. Students may enroll in one practicum course each semester and may need to secure approval prior to registration.
