One trait that is common among our graduates is that they are risk-takers. They are not necessarily trying to do things the safe way that everybody else does them. They are not afraid to have their own ideas and then to try them out and to share them.