More Information

Disability Awareness Week

Each year JMU’s Office of Disability Services hosts Disability Awareness Week. This event promotes knowledge of disability as both a topic and a lived experience through keynote speakers, panel discussions, film screenings, experiential learning opportunities, and facilitating increased engagement in local and global communities. Students who pursue the minor in Disability Studies are encouraged to take advantage of the many DAW events to broaden their knowledge and deepen their community connections.

Advisory Board

Daisy Breneman
Advisor, Justice Studies
M.A. James Madison University

Kerry Dobransky
Associate Professor of Sociology
M.A., Ph.D. Northwestern University

Susan Ghiaciuc
Associate Professor of Writing, Rhetoric, and Technical Communication
M.F.A. University of Texas at El Paso
Ph.D. University of Louisville

Josh Pate
Assistant Professor of Sport and Recreation Management
M.S., Ph.D. University of Tennessee

Valerie Schoolcraft
Director, Office of Disability Studies
M.A. University of Arkansas at Little Rock

Matt Trybus
Coordinator, Peer Assisted Study Sessions (PASS)
M.Ed. University of Vermont

Minor in Disability Studies

AT JAMES MADISON UNIVERSITY
The Minor

- The minor in disability studies engages students in an examination of the many ways disability is defined and constructed.

- Students will build knowledge of the political, rhetorical, social, educational, historical, legal, and medical frameworks of disability through both classroom and experiential study in courses drawn from several disciplines.

- Students will examine the ways systems inhibit and promote full participation of people with disabilities, explore how communities define and reinforce norms, and understand disability as an inherent part of diversity and inclusivity.

- The minor in disability studies is open to all undergraduate students at JMU. The introductory course DST 100 can be taken the same semester with core courses. More than one core course can be taken to count toward the overall credit requirement. No more than nine hours may be taken from a single discipline. No more than two courses may be double counted for a student’s major/minor.

- Students will be able to apply the critical frameworks they develop not only to their academic studies, but in their professional, personal, and civic lives, supporting their development as globally enlightened citizens.

Courses

Required Courses

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Course Title</th>
<th>Credit Hours</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>DST 100. Introduction to Disability Studies</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Choose one of the following core courses: 3

- JUST 385. Disability and Justice
- KIN 429. Special Topics in Adapted Physical Education
- WRTC 430/SCOM 343. Contemporary Rhetorical Theory and Practice: Disability Rhetoric
- SOCI 335. Disability and Society
- SOCI 375. Medical Sociology

Choose five of the following elective courses: 15

- ANTH 360. Medical Anthropology
- ANTH 395. Special Topics in Anthropology: Sex and the Social: The Cultural Politics of Reproduction
- DANC 325. Dance in Community
- HIST 306. A History of the Body in the West
- JUST 221. Social Justice Theories
- SCOM 370. Introduction to Health Communication
- SOCI 304. Social Deviance
- SOCI 385. Madness and Society: The Sociology of Mental Health and Illness
- SRM 242. Sociology and Psychology of Sport and Recreation
- SRM 436. Facilities and Event Management

For further information or to declare the Disability Studies minor, please contact:

Dr. Susan Ghiauciuc
Writing, Rhetoric, and Technical Communication
Harrison 2271
Phone: (540) 568-1613
Email: ghiaicusx@jmu.edu

Daisy Breneman
University Advising/Justice Studies
Moody 213B
Phone: (540) 568-4247
Email: brenemdl@jmu.edu

Josh Sundquist, Dear World photo campaign, March 2016

---

19