

“I was just so excited to find a place where I could talk about teaching and learning- I call it ‘talking shop’. It was just exciting to sit down with others across the university and talk about teaching and learning and what’s going on and help faculty members- especially those who are teaching but never had any teaching background because that’s really hard.”

*Robbie Higdon,
College of Education*