

What People are Saying

"The practicum experiences, the support and guidance from the teaching faculty, the relationships built with other adult students from surrounding school divisions, and the "real life" problems and issues addressed in the educational leadership program at JMU helped prepare me to be successful at my first administrative position. I still keep in touch with several of the professors and fellow students (that are now also administrators).

I am so glad I made the choice to get my advanced degree from JMU! This program helped prepare me to be the very best school principal I can be ... and to remember to keep the students first in all my decisions!"

-Principal Teresa Day

"Had this cohort not been made available so close to home and at such a reasonable cost, I would never have attempted this journey. This has been the single most informative and valuable educational experience in a lifetime dedicated to learning. This program has been a life-changing, empowering experience."

-Rich Follett, Certificate Program Graduate

Educational Leadership

Creating today's leaders for tomorrow's schools

The Master's Degree in Education with a concentration in Educational Leadership is designed to prepare candidates to assume leadership positions both in school and district offices. The organizing theme for the program is the school/district administrator's central role as the interpreter, facilitator, and initiator of educational change leading to effective schools and increased student achievement for all children.

The educational leader must understand and interpret changes within this context to improve the safety and operation of schools.

In the role of facilitator, the administrator must be able to effectively implement programs mandated by the school board and support positive changes suggested by students, staff, or parents.

Finally, as the initiator of change, the administrator must lead the process of continuous school improvement.
