

The Cohen Center
for the Humanities

Making Space for Interdisciplinary Ideas

Cohen Center Graduate Scholars Application—2020

The CC Graduate Scholars Program helps all graduate students undertaking scholarship with a significant humanities and/or interdisciplinary component prepare to present at a professional conference. The program consists of two workshops held at multiple times during the year (dates to be determined later):

- Workshop 1: Finding the right conference and crafting a proposal
- Workshop 2: Preparing and delivering your presentation

After the successful completion of the program, participants will be eligible for up to a $500 reimbursement for costs associated with presenting at a regional, national or international conference. Participants must attend both workshops, as well as attend and present their work at the conference, to receive the reimbursement. Eligible professional conferences must be held during 2020 and travel must be completed prior to graduation from JMU.

Name: _____

SID: _____

Graduate Program: _____

Conference you plan to present at (if known): _____

Briefly describe (in lay terms) the topic and the significance of your scholarship you are undertaking:

What will you gain professionally by presenting your scholarship at a conference?

Spaces in the program are limited and competitive! Please return this completed application as an attachment via email to Michael J. Klein at kleinmj@jmu.edu by January 15 at noon. Submission of this application indicates that you agree to the stipulations of the program.

NOTE:

- Students are encouraged to work with a faculty mentor in their area to prepare for the conference
- A limited amount of funding may be available for panels made up of three students from different disciplines