On March 11, 2022, 45 philanthropic investors attended the ninth annual Madison Trust innovation funding event at James Madison University. You and the rest of this distinguished panel have helped fund all 10 of the projects presented. Already, three of those projects are fully underwritten by you and your fellow donors.

You'll find the current financial standing of each project on the other side of this brief update. Know that everyone who contributes to these projects will receive a more detailed update on progress this fall and again in February 2023.

Meanwhile, at <https://j.mu/mtrust>, you can follow the progress of funding as well as send friends to this website to give at any time. Note that all pledges we receive are represented here and updated as they are processed.

Thank you sincerely for your commitment to and support of innovation at JMU.

Warm regards,
