

"How we understand ourselves, others, and the larger world must change."

This fundamental contention is at the very heart of the Cultivating the Globally Sustainable Self Summit Series, a multi-year, multi-institution initiative that brings together scholars, educators, practitioners, students, and leaders from around the world to address the most pressing issues of our day – conflict resolution, global education, human rights, religious and cultural understanding, and sustainability.

WHO WE ARE

Change Agents: Individuals, Groups, Organizations, Movements

Experts in Research and Assessment

Scholars, Educators, and Practitioners of the Self

"Big Sky" Thinkers and Leaders

LEARN MORE / JOIN US!

WEBSITES

www.jmu.edu/summitseries
and <https://www.summitx.org>

EMAIL

summitseries@jmu.edu

WHAT WE DO

Collaborate: We support local and global teams who engage in cutting-edge education, leadership, policy, practice, and research.

Communicate: We publish and present what we discover and do through multiple forums, such as a forthcoming book on the Summit Series with Oxford University Press, transformative learning films, and web-based materials.

Convene: We meet regularly to further our mission and activities, invite others to contribute, and plan for the future.

